Yale Caps Thrilling Season with National Title

After a season that saw a hard fought race for APDA’s Team of the Year Title, Yale runs to finals at the North American and United States Universities Debating Championships, a fantastic performance at the World Championships, and another successful year atop the list of the best debate teams in the country, Yale captured its first American Parliamentary Debate Association National Championship since 2009. While Yale had finaled at the tournament in 2011 and 2012, and narrowly lost the chance to do so in 2013, the team of Zach Bakal (CC ’14) and Michael Barton (BK ’14) defeated teams from across the country to claim victory in a national championship that saw one of Yale’s most successful years yet at the tournament.

The early part of the year was dominated by one of the most competitive races for APDA’s Team of the Year (TOTY) award in recent years, with Barton and Bakal locked in a close battle with a pair of debaters from Harvard. While Harvard ultimately gained the upper hand, Yale would go on to dominate the TOTY standings regardless, with Barton and Joanna Zheng (TC ’14) taking third position to Bakal and Barton’s second, and Diana Li (DC ’15) finishing in 9th and 10th place with Nick Cugini (CC ’14) and Eric Brooks (DC ’14).

At the same time, the YDA had an incredible year on North American and international British Parliamentary circuits, with Sam Ward-Packard (SY ’14) and Sovenu Waldmanzam (BK ’14) reaching the finals of the North American Championship, while Barton and Ward-Packard broke first at Oxford, finaled at Cambridge, semifinalled at the World Championships, and then reached the finals of the U.S. Championship.

Unsurprisingly, the YDA continued to prove itself as the best team in the United States through its continued dominance of APDA’s College of the Year (COTY) ranking, where Yale accumulated nearly double the points of the second-place team. This ranking reflects an excellent class of new novices, and the dedication and involvement of the YDA’s members to every aspect of the team.

The Yale Debate Association captured its first American Parliamentary Debate Association National Championship in five years this past May at the University of Pennsylvania, where for the sixth consecutive year Yale led the league in the number and skill of debaters qualified for the tournament, falling short only to previous Yale records. Yale also forward-ed the youngest team to break at nationals, with sophomores Tony Nguyen (DC ’16) and Edwin Zhang (MC ’16) advancing to quarterfinals after handing defeat to William and Mary by proposing a case about net neutrality.

The tournament also demonstrated the continual commitment of Yale’s alumni to the team and circuit. Kate Falkenstein (SY ’12) served on the tournament’s tab staff, with Andrew Con- nery (PC ’13), David Trinh (TD ’12), Max Dovala (SM ’13), Ben Kornfeld (DC ’13), Robert Colonel (SY ’13), and Nate Blevins (PC ’12) judging.

Zach Bakal and Michael Barton defeated the team of Quinn Manig and Steani Leonard from Rutgers in the final round, opposing a case about how San Francisco Supervisor Harvey Milk should have been depicted in the eponymous 2008 film. “Yale BB” was one of five Yale teams to reach the tournament’s elimination rounds. In quarterfinals, the pair faced the Yale team of Allison Douglas (BK ’15) and Joanna Zheng on a case about tort law. Douglas and Zheng had previously defeated a team from American University in the octofinal round in a debate on Saudi Arabian foreign policy. Bakal and Barton also faced the Yale team of Nick Cugini and Diana Li. On a different side of the elimination bracket, Eric Brooks and Sam Ward-Packard also made the octofinal round, losing narrowly to adversaries from Brandeis Universi-
Throughout the year the YDA competes at more than 40 tournaments, across the country and world. Domestically, many of these tournaments are in the format of American Parliamentary debate, sanctioned by the American Parliamentary Debate Association. Throughout the year the YDA and its members compete at tournaments every weekend in an effort to qualify for Nationals and earn points towards APDA's prestigious year end awards: Club of the Year, Team of the Year ("TOTY"), Speaker of the Year ("SOTY") and Novice of the Year ("NOTY").

This year’s TOTY race was a hard fought struggle between Yale and Harvard which featured excellent performances by numerous Yale debaters. The YDA gained the upper hand early on as Zach Bakal and Michael Barton defeated Harvard’s Shomik Ghosh and Josh Zoffer in the semifinals at Johns Hopkins. However, Harvard’s victory at Columbia turned the tables going into a series of tournaments at Brandeis and Harvard itself. While Bakal and Barton suffered an early defeat at Harvard, they emerged victorious from the Brandeis tournament once again clutching the lead in the TOTY race. Unfortunately, a string of Harvard wins at Brown, George Washington, and Maryland meant that Yale’s remaining wins and valiant defeats were unable to turn the tide.

While Yale fought fiercely with Harvard for the top spot on the TOTY board, Yale steamrolled the rest of the circuit for third place, with Barton and Joanna Zheng handily winning a pair of tournaments and finishing behind only another Yale team at Stanford. At the same time, Yale rounded out the TOTY board with the partnership of Nick Cugini and Diana Li finishing ninth, and Li repeating her performance with Eric Brooks to capture 10th TOTY as well.

The YDA routed the APDA in the COTY race. In typical Yale fashion, the YDA accumulated over 200 more points than the combined total of the second ranked team, and qualified the plurality of debaters for the national tournament.

APDA also recognizes the performance of individual speakers through its SOTY awards. In this category too, Yale shone. Zach Bakal won three tournaments to finish the year ranked 2nd, while Michael Barton secured 9th place.

The North American Championships ("NorthAms") – held this year at the University of Ottawa—is a unique debate tournament that brings together schools from Canada and the USA in a hybrid of Canadian and APDA styles. Yale has traditionally been very dominant at NorthAms, most recently winning the title in the years 2009 and 2011. Despite not winning outright, even this year the YDA outperformed the rest of the American contingent at the tournament, breaking three teams, nearly half the number of total American teams in the break. The team of Zach Bakal and Michael Barton reached the quarterfinal round of the tournament, while the team of Allison Douglas and Joanna Zheng made octofinals, as did the team of Reed Berry (ES ’16) and Nathaniel Rubin (SY ’15). These achievements were topped only by Michael Barton claiming the title of top speaker, Yale’s third time winning the award in four years.

The tournament also saw substantial success for Yale’s novice teams, with Evan Lynyak (MC ’17) and Henry Zhang (ES ’17) reaching the novice final, unfortunately being defeated by a team from the University of Toronto’s Hart House Debating Society.

Yale Dominates in British Parliamentary

The Yale Debate Association’s success in British Parliamentary Debate extends across the country and around the world. Yale’s excellent performance at Worlds does not tell the full story of our consistently excellent performance up against some of the best teams on the planet.

Every year, the YDA travels to the UK to participate in the Oxford and Cambridge Intervarsity (IV) tournaments. At the Oxford IV, the team of Michael Barton and Sam Ward-Packard were ranked first after the preliminary rounds of the tournament and advanced to the semifinals, while being ranked as the tournament’s fourth and tenth speakers. A week later, at the Cambridge IV, Barton and Ward-Packard exceeded their previous performance, making the finals of the tournament and finishing narrowly behind a team from St. Andrews in a debate about the Syrian Civil War.

At the University of Toronto in Canada, Yale had an excellent performance at the debut edition of the North American Universities Debating Championship (USU), taking place at Purdue University, in West Lafayette, Indiana. Six Yale debaters went to the Midwest to compete at the tournament. After six preliminary rounds, Michael Barton and Sam Ward-Packard emerged atop the standings. Tied on speaks, Ward-Packard took his second top speaker award at the tournament, with Barton receiving his first. The team continued Yale’s tradition of reaching USU finals, finishing second to a team from Bates College on a motion about religious leaders in politics. At the same time, freshmen Adil Hakeem (PC ’17) and Shirley Kuan (TD ’17) won the novice division and title of best-first-year team in North America.

Back home, Yale had a number of notable achievements. At the second annual Brandeis IV, Yale sw the team of Reed Berry and Edwin Zhang make the semifinals with the hybrid team of Zach Bakal and Harvard’s Shomik Ghosh, while the teams of Joanna Zheng and Allison Douglas and Anirudh Sivaram (CC ’15) and Nathaniel Rubin both made quarterfinals.

The final BP competition of the year, the United States National BP Championships (USU), took place at Purdue University, in West Lafayette, Indiana. Six Yale debaters went to the Midwest to compete at the tournament. After six preliminary rounds, Michael Barton and Sam Ward-Packard emerged atop the standings. Tied on speaks, Ward-Packard took his second top speaker award at the tournament, with Barton receiving his first. What We’ve Been Debating

On the YDA we debate primarily in two formats:

- American Parliamentary
- British Parliamentary

In American Parliamentary debate, the government (or affirmative) team proposes a topic of their choosing — usually a case they have written in advance. The opposition (or negating) team has only the 7 minutes of the first government speaker’s speech to think of their counterargument.

For example, in the Semifinals of the 2012 APDA National Championships, the government team Yale CF (Nick Cugini and Kate Falkenstien) proposed a hypothetical — asking whether the government should ban a pill that parents could take to assure their children would be straight. The opposition team, Yale BK (Nate Blevins & Ben Kornfeld) defended their side in the round by arguing for the justness of the government’s use of people as an end. The government team won the debate. A video of the round can be found at the following address: http://videos.apdaweb.org/?p=552

In British Parliamentary debate, there are 4 teams (2 on each side), all of whom are given the topic 15 minutes before the start of the debate. The team that wins has to not only beat the teams arguing the other side, but also provide more compelling material than the other team on their own side.

The 2013 finals of the United States Universities Debating Championship saw Yale face off against teams from Carroll College, Loyola Marymount University, and Stanford. The teams were faced with the motion “Whilst recognizing that life begins at conception, this house still supports a woman’s right to abortion.” Yale KW (Ben Kornfeld and Sam Ward-Packard) were in the position of opening opposition. They decisively beat the other three teams in the round, coming out as champions atop over 130 teams at the tournament, and capping Yale’s third consecutive year of appearing in the finals of the tournament with a national title.

Yale Competes in 106th Annual Triangular Debates with Harvard and Princeton

For the 105th time, YDA members competed in the continuing tradition known as the “Triangular Debates,” a three-part series of debates between debaters at Yale, Harvard, and Princeton. While Triangulars is no longer strictly adjudicated, as it was for several decades beginning in 1908, it remains an opportunity for these debating associations to meet in a smaller setting and debate relevant moral or political issues.

Princeton traveled to Yale this year; seniors Eric Brooks, Nick Cugini, and Sesenu Woldemariam debated the Princeton delegation on a case about political philosophy. Yale faced Harvard away, with Michael Barton, Zach Bakal, and Sam Ward-Packard facing Harvard’s Josh Zoffer, Ben Sprung-Keyser, and Nathaniel Donahue on a motion about the financial sector.

6th Annual Great Debate is Great Success

For the sixth year in a row, the YDA participated in the NAACP’s “Great Debate,” a public debate featuring two debates on issues which have particular relevance to the NAACP and its mission. For the first time, the YDA competed against Marshall, Texas’ Wiley College—home to the historic debate team depicted in the 2007 film The Great Debaters.

Held at New Haven’s Shubert Theater, the event featured a debate on civil rights and public policy issues. Yale was represented in the debate by Sesenu Woldemariam, Sam Ward-Packard, Diana Li, and Joanna Zheng.

The YDA would especially like to thank the NAACP of Connecticut, its president Scott X Esdaile, and Wiley College’s Melvin B. Tolson Forensics Society.

YDA Tops North American Teams at the World Championships

The World Universities Debating Championships (colloquially called “Worlds”) is the most competitive and prestigious university debating tournament in the world. Historically, the YDA has always done well - Yale was the first American School to win Worlds in 1990, and in 2006 was the first American school to have a team in the finals of the competition in its modern format. In addition to this, Yale debaters and alumni regularly feature in the elimination rounds of the championship.

This year, eight members of the YDA travelled to Chennai, India to compete and judge in the latest iteration of the championship, one of the largest delegations at the tournament. After nine preliminary rounds, Yale successfully put two of its three teams through to the elimination rounds. Michael Barton and Samuel Ward-Packard broke 24th, and Zach Bakal and Sesenu Woldemariam broke 30th. Both teams successfully advanced from the partial-double-octofinal round about gated communities in the developing world, and similarly were victorious in the octofinal in a debate on whether Japan should shame its soldiers who participated in World War II. In the quarterfinal round about auctioning the right to govern bankrupt cities, Bakal and Woldemariam unfortunately did not advance further. However, Barton and Ward-Packard repeated Yale’s success at the tournament from 2011 by advancing to Semifinals, before narrowly losing a spot in the final to a team from the University of Sydney. In addition, Diana Li had the honor of breaking as a judge, and helped adjudicate the tournament’s octofinal round.

The Yale High School Tournament

The Yale Debate Association hosted its 20th annual High School Invitational last September. With competition in over a dozen speech and debate events ranging from humorous interpretation to policy debate, the tournament takes place as part of the National Forensic League (“NFL”) for high school students. Over 1,500 high school students from over one hundred schools came from around the country to compete at Yale. Since its inception, the tournament has become one of the most prestigious high school competitions in the country and is certainly the most respected.

The Yale Proams

The Yale Debate Association hosted its first annual APDA ProAm tournament this February, with teams from across the country in attendance. Designed as an opportunity to help contribute to the development of debaters on APDA, the ProAm tournament featured some of the best adjudication on the circuit, and gave young debaters an excellent chance both to learn from their older partners, as well as to practice debating motions as are featured at the National Championships. The tournament featured motions spanning topics as diverse as American party politics, abstract philosophy, and the ethics of military service.

Yale Proams

The tournament ran very smoothly, thanks to the hard work of tournament director Michael Barton, as well as assistant tournament directors Reed Berry and Edwin Zhang and tab director Zach Bakal. In assistance with the whole of the YDA in judging and handling tournament logistics, they assured the YDA’s new tradition got off to an excellent start.

The Yale IV

As the largest so far, the seventh Yale Invitational was an unprecedented success, attracting more than 300 debaters from more than 40 universities, with Bates College winning the final in a field contested amongst some of the most successful North American debaters on record.

The Yale IV is one of the most prestigious British Parliamentary competitions in the world, and the largest and most competitive in North America. Held in the same style as the World Championships, it provides an opportunity for many American and Canadian schools to practice the style needed to compete with the rest of the world, without the cost of traveling overseas. In addition, this IV continued the practice of flying experienced judges in from Europe and around the world to let debaters experience the truly global judging found at worlds.

The 2013 Invitational was overseen by tournament directors Allison Douglas and Anirudh Sivaram. YDA alumni Ben Kornfeld and Nate Blevins served on the adjudication core for the event, as well as 2014 Worlds Semifinalist Sam Ward.

The 2014 Executive Board

President: Diana Li. Diana is a senior in Davenport College majoring in Ethics, Politics, and Economics. Originally from Brooklyn, she has been involved in debate since high school, where she competed in the Lincoln-Douglas format. Before serving as president, she was the team’s tournament coordinator. Beyond debate, she enjoys photography, hiking, writing for the local newspaper, napping, and telling people she will get her driver’s license eventually.

Treasurer: Anirudh Sivaram. Anirudh is a senior in Calhoun College hailing from Dubai. An Ethics, Politics, and Economics major, he helped launch his high school’s debating program and today competes in both the British and American Parliamentary styles. In the past, he has served as a convener for the Yale Intervarsity tournament.

Director of Development: Nathaniel Rubin. Nathaniel is a senior in Saybrook College. Originally from Anchorage, Alaska, he is a philosophy major who competed in Lincoln-Douglas and British Parliamentary debate in high school. Today, Nathaniel enjoys debating on both the British and American Parliamentary circuits, where he has reached the elimination rounds of multiple domestic and international championship tournaments. Before serving as the YDA’s development director, Nathaniel directed the Osterweis high school parliamentary debate tournament. When not debating, Nathaniel enjoys making bad puns, hiking, skiing, and discovering new types of cheese.

Tournament Coordinator: Edwin Zhang. Edwin Zhang is a junior in Morse College from Akron, OH planning to double major in Applied Math and Ethics, Politics, and Economics. In his free time, he enjoys playing pick-up basketball, watching Suits, and reading science fiction. He has really bad taste in music and will sing top 40 hits to you if given the chance. Prior to serving on board, he was an assistant tournament director for the Yale Intervarsity tournament.

Director of Membership: Allison Douglis. Allison is a senior in Berkeley College majoring in Philosophy. She grew up in New Jersey and attended Ridge High School, where she competed in Lincoln-Douglas debate. Upon joining the YDA, she co-directed the 2013 Yale Intervarsity Tournament and assistant-directed the 2012 Osterweis Tournament, served as the team’s Equal Opportunity Facilitator, and was a novice mentor for the American Parliamentary League. Apart from debate, she enjoys working on the Yale Philosophy Review, binge-watching Netflix, and (very occasionally) reading for pleasure.
The Yale Debate Association has a tradition of coaching New Haven school students in debate. Members of the team coach at schools affiliated with the Urban Debate League on a weekly basis, helping both with specific events and general debating skills. The team also has had a relationship with Choate Rosemary Hall, with team-members coaching Choate pupils once a week. Recently, members of the Yale Debate Association have begun to serve by invitation as Executive Board Members of the National High School Debate League of China.

David Kimel
David Kimel is the head coach of the Yale Debate Association. He is currently pursuing a PhD in History. Before coming to Yale, he pursued his undergraduate education at Harvard, where he was a member of the APDA Team of the Year in 2005. Outside of debate, Kimel enjoys sharing his passion for movies and Roman history with members of the team.

Alex Worsnip
Alex Worsnip is the chief British Parliamentary coach of the Yale Debate Association. He is currently pursuing his PhD in Philosophy, having done his undergraduate schooling at Oxford University. Alex is a former WUDC finalist and in his spare time, follows the Baltimore Orioles.

Steven Kryger
Steven Kryger currently works at Bridgewater Associates. He graduated from Yale College in 2010; during his time on the team he was champion of the Oxford IV and reached the elimination rounds of multiple national and international tournaments.

Alex Taubes
Alex Taubes is a 3L at Yale Law School. He graduated from Boston University in 2011, where he served as President of the Boston University Debate Society. In 2011, Alex was the first debater in over a decade to win APDA’s Team of the Year, Speaker of the Year, and National Championship awards in the same year.

Nick Cugini
Nick Cugini is a member of the Yale College Class of 2014. On the Yale team, Nick was 2nd TOTY in 2011, a Worlds Semifinalist the same year, and an APDA Nationals Finalist in 2012.

The Social Side of the YDA

Apart from being a competitively successful team, the YDA is a tight-knit group of friends. While team members spend time together at tournaments, the team hosts many social functions throughout the year at Yale – ranging from the annual Christmas party to toasting at Mor’s. More informally, members of the YDA attend team dinners, play basketball together, and cook a huge variety of delicious food. The team maintains the tradition of holding ‘office hours’ every Thursday night to discuss case ideas and catch up. The year culminates with our Senior Banquet at a local restaurant, at which each YDA senior gives a farewell speech.

Many members of the team go on to share workplaces, graduate schools and even live together after college. For a substantial portion of the YDA, the team consists of our strongest and most lasting friendships, and going to tournaments every weekend is just as much a way to spend time with each other as it is a chance to compete at the highest level.

Away from the Podium

While the YDA is made up of fantastic debaters, we all like to believe that debate skills come in handy in more than just debate. As such, our members take part in all sorts of activities in addition to maintaining a deep commitment to debate. At Yale, we do everything from club sports to writing for the YDN (it isn’t that rare to see an editorial page half filled by the YDA). Our members are involved in the Yale College Student Investment Group, the Yale College Democrats, Yale College Council and Yale International Relations Association. In addition, our membership is diverse, with members from across the world who continue to take part in activities with a wide range of campus cultural groups.

The YDA also attracts students of a wide variety of disciplines. Our members study Architecture, English, Economics, Philosophy, Developmental Biology and Political Science. Over their summers, our members work as management consultants and speechwriters, as teachers and as investment bankers, for government and nonprofits, and study abroad around the from Brazil to Britain and from Spain to China.

Alumni Events

The Yale Association for Debate Alumni (YADA) holds get-togethers every summer to offer alumni the opportunity to see old friends, meet new members, and generally have an enjoyable time with fellow former and current members of the YDA. In the summer of 2014, get-togethers were held in both New York and Washington D.C. with dozens of people involved.

The events took place at bars in both cities, where members of classes present and past met, shared stories about debate and life, and sang karaoke. Current team members attended the events, and an excellent time was had by all.

The YDA offers its sincere gratitude to those who have supported the team
